

UniBen Convocation: President Tinubu Hints on Re-introduction of Full Autonomy for Nigerian Varsities

The President and Commander-in-Chief of the Armed Forces, Federal Republic of Nigeria and Visitor to the University of Benin (UNIBEN), Asiwaju Bola Ahmed Tinubu, GCFR, has said the Federal government was working towards the re-introduction of the Policy of University Full Autonomy.

The new policy direction, the President noted was premised on the federal government conviction that university autonomy provided the platform for institutions to develop at the pace set by their councils and senate rather than being bugged down by any external bottlenecks or red tapism.

He spoke through the Minister of Niger Delta Development, Engineer Abubakar Momoh who made the revelation at the University of Benin's 48th convocation ceremony.

He expressed optimism that, university autonomy would no doubt, transfer the responsibility of performance directly to the individual institutions rather than the current state of uncertainties.

His Excellency Bola Ahmed Tinubu, GCFR
President and Commander-in-Chief of the Armed Forces, Federal Republic of Nigeria

In his words: "This administration believes that this is a right step in the right direction and will do all that is possible to re-position tertiary Institutions and indeed the education sector in the country for excellent service delivery.

"Government is not unmindful of the concerns arising from months unions, as a fall out of the eight months industrial action.

"You are all aware of the fact that I recently announced a four-month salary payment for all university workers to minimise the impact of the non-payment of salary during that period for work not done.

necessary and does not in any way obviate the “No Work, No Pay” policy of government.”

The President also said the federal government would continue to demonstrate its commitment to improved conditions of welfare in the universities with the provision of needed infrastructure, including lecture theatres, students’ hostels, administrative offices and learning tools.

“Gladly these are currently being executed consistently through the Tertiary Education Trust Fund (TETFund). This gesture is expected to galvanise staff and students to put in their best.

“As a responsible government, we would continue to dedicate tangible resources to education and to formulate sustainable policies that would outlive this administration.

“Our education policy formulators and the universities should strive to modify such policies to accommodate every segment of the youth population, through specialised skills acquisition programmes and internships.

“Our universities have the multiple responsibilities of helping to expand horizons through research and technological breakthroughs, impartation of relevant skills and by being more entrepreneurial in outlook.

“They must also take up the onerous task of re-directing the teeming youths on the path of moral rectitude, love for nation and respect for constituted authorities.

“Certainly, we must return to the Nigeria our founding fathers fought for and bequeathed to us. Our journey to industrialisation, economic prosperity and self-reliance as a nation, can only be realised, if all hands are on deck.

“It is only in togetherness that we can achieve greatness, the crux of our gathering here today is to celebrate another bountiful harvest by the University of Benin, represented by the

NUC Home for All Universities in Nigeria - Ag. ES

The National Universities Commission has been described as the home for all universities in Nigeria, irrespective of their ownership status.

The Acting Executive Secretary of the Commission Mr. Chris J. Maiyaki made this known on Tuesday 5th December, 2023, while fielding questions from the media crew of the Airforce Institute of Technology (AFIT), Kaduna, who came on a brief courtesy call to the Commission.

Mr. Maiyaki, while responding to a request by the team for Government intervention on hostel accommodation for the students of AFIT, whom they said were now over 10,000 as against 600 students by 2017, said that the Federal Government remained the sole owner of the Institution, and that it was willing to do everything possible to provide accommodation for students in order to guarantee their security.

The Acting Executive Secretary explained further that the Honourable Minister of Education, Professor Tahir Mamman, had promised to escalate the students' accommodation matter as it affected some federal universities, including Federal Universities, Gusau and Dutsin Ma, where the students had faced challenge of insecurity due to lack of questions, the NUC Scribe explained that the Commission had recently re-engineered the Curriculum and up-scaled it to be in tandem with the current adequate availability of students' accommodation.

Mr. Maiyaki stated that AFIT had enjoyed sustained peace and tranquillity and commended them for sustaining academic stability as an institution that did not join strikes embarked upon by the university unions. He promised that NUC would look into their matters and assured them that the Government would consider their plight in the best interest of the students as well as all stakeholders.

and global realities aimed at making the Nigerian universities highly competitive with their counterparts elsewhere in the world.

Commenting on the recently introduced top up programme by the NBTE, Mr. Maiyaki said that it was paradoxical, as NBTE was established to man technical education and not to award degrees, while NUC was fully empowered to oversee the orderly development and smooth-running of universities in Nigeria that award degrees.

He added that there was no imbroglio between the two

While responding on a lighter note, on his humble biography, the Executive Secretary simple said that he grew up as an orphan who lost both parents under the age of eight and was under the care of his uncle.

He added that he did not allow the barrier of lack of parental affections and care to deter his progress in life, stressing that “ the fear of failure made him stronger.”

He said determination, hardwork and commitment had been his guiding principles.

He called on all citizenry never to loose hope in Nigeria, saying that the country would be great again.

UNN: Ooni urges graduates to be good ambassadors

His Imperial Majesty, Oba Adeyeye Ogunwusi, the Ooni of Ife and Chancellor, University of Nigeria, Nsukka (UNN), has urged graduates and those conferred with honorary degrees to be good ambassadors of the institution.

The Ooni said this last Saturday in Nsukka, during the 51st convocation ceremony of the UNN for the award of postgraduate degrees, diplomas and conferment of honorary degrees.

He urged them not to relent as the ambassadors of the university in sustaining the good reputations the university had earned over the years.

“I urge all the graduates and honorary awardees never to relent in being good ambassadors of this great university wherever they found themselves.

“UNN as the first university in the country, our graduates are expected to live up to our name and reputation in restoring the dignity of man.

“To the honorary awardees, the recognition given to you today by the university should spur you to greater heights to do more to the university as well as render more selfless service to humanity,” he said.

He also urged Nigerians to see the task of uniting the country as everybody’s responsibility.

“It worries me and other patriotic Nigerians that our country can be said to be less united as it was at independence.

“From recent developments across the country, I wish to remind us that we are failing in our attempt to build a truly united nation.

“As graduates we are proud to have been in a school like this where you have classmates, roommates, and friends from different parts of the country and the world.

“You have a duty to teach others that we are the same people irrespective of the tiny differences in our culture, management for their commitment and dedication in ensuring that they sustained the dreams and visions of the founding fathers of the university and urged them to keep it up.

In his Convocation Address, Professor Igwe said that the ceremony was dedicated to the award of postgraduate degrees and honorary degrees, which, according to him, marked the grand finale of the 51st convocation ceremony of the institution.

“Some 1,548 postgraduate degrees and Diplomas were awarded at the convocation.

“This is made up of 519 degrees, 934 Master’s degrees and 95 Postgraduate diplomas.

“I congratulate the graduates for earning the postgraduate degree or diploma of this great university, which have elevated you to the elite club of alumni who hold a postgraduate qualification of the University. It is an achievement that you should be proud of,” he said.

The VC, who used the ceremony to share some of the recent developments at the University, noted that the institution had remained competitive and had continued to re-invent itself in spite of the challenges of inadequate and ageing infrastructures facing the first generation university.

“We have continued to strive to retain the reputation of excellence for which we have been known over years. Our staff have been quite productive, not only in teaching, research and innovation, but also in community service.

“Our university is also a beneficiary of a good number of projects from capital allocation, NEEDS assessment and TETFund intervention.

“In spite of all these, UNN is in dire need of support from friends and alumni as the university is worse hit by the prevailing economic conditions in the country,” he said.

According to the Vice-Chancellor, the Doctor of Public Administration degree would be conferred on former Inspector General of Police, Ogbonna Onovo, while the Managing Director and Chief Executive Officer of Fidelity Bank Plc, Nneka Onyeali-Ikpe, would be awarded the Doctor of Business Administration degree.

Professor Igwe also said that Professors Virginia Dike and Eunice Okeke of the Faculty of Education; Professor Martin Aghaji of the Faculty of Medical Sciences as well as Professors Daniel Obikeze, Azuka Dike, Timothy Nwala and Emmanuel Chinwokwu of the Faculty of The Social Sciences were elevated to the status of Professor Emeritus of UNN.

New President/CEO COL Emerges

Professor Peter Scott has emerged as the new President and Chief Executive Officer (CEO) of the Commonwealth of Learning (COL), after an exhaustive global search.

This announcement was made by the Chair of the Board of Governors of the Commonwealth of Learning, His Excellency Danny Faure, who said Professor Scott would be taking up the role of President and Chief Executive Officer of the Commonwealth of Learning effective from 8 January 2024.

He would be taking over from Professor Asha Kanwar who has led the organisation for over 11 years.

Professor Scott brings a distinguished track record and considerable credibility as a senior executive, thought leader and scholar over a 40-year career in the field of open and distance learning.

His qualifications combined with extensive senior and executive leadership experience will build on the work of previous Presidents to advance the aims of the Commonwealth of Learning (COL) and its member nations from across the Commonwealth.

In his acceptance speech, Professor Scott notes the following: “My entire working career has focused on a mission to open quality education to all learners at all stages of their learning journey.

I am driven by a passion for the positive change and outcomes that are created by excellent learning at all levels and am excited by the opportunity that technology provides to enable new forms of access.

I have immense respect for Professor Kanwar’s extraordinary leadership and passion for education. I will be building upon a great legacy of ongoing impact.”

Professor Kanwar is quoted as saying “I have been proud to have served those who most needed our support to access education and as new technologies become more accessible, it is my hope that COL will continue to innovate and drive access.

Professor Peter Scott
New President /CEO, Commonwealth of Learning (COL)

As Chair, I also take this opportunity to thank Professor Asha Kanwar who has led the organisation for over 11 years to critical acclaim. Her achievements and ability to build relationships and drive programmes of real impact for women, girls and many others across the Commonwealth is something that the Board is immensely proud of.

It is likely that her leadership of the small team at COL has touched hundreds of thousands of people and made a real difference in improving the livelihoods of those most in need. We will all miss Professor Kanwar and wish her well in her future endeavours.

I wish Professor Scott well in his tenure as the President and CEO.” Her contribution has been vast and this acknowledgement does not do justice to her commitment and dedication. We thank Professor Kanwar for all that she has done for COL and more broadly across the Commonwealth.

Whilst we will be sad to be saying farewell to Professor Kanwar at the end of this year, I am sure many across our communities will know of and be reassured that Professor Scott will more than capably take the organisation forward, and will join with me in welcoming and celebrating his appointment as the next President and CEO of COL.
